Trial by Fire? Be Not Afraid!

by: Dr. Marcellino D'Ambrosio

We all admire the heroes of faith like St. Francis (feast day, October 4). Absolutely nothing stopped him in his pursuit of God's glory. When, during the Crusades, he was captured by the Saracens, St. Francis challenged the imams to a duel to prove which was the true religion. "Light a bonfire," Francis said to the Sultan, "and have your imam enter the fire along with me. Whoever emerges from the flames unhurt, his God is the true God." The Sultan thought it was a good idea. His imam did not. But from that moment on, the Sultan gave Francis and his friars safe passage passes to travel anywhere in Muslim territories unhindered so much was he moved by Francis' faith.

So how about us? We identify more with the apostles' request in this Sunday's gospel. "Lord, increase our faith! (Lk 17:5).

You think the Lord would comfort the disciples when they made this request. "There, there, now. Don't feel too bad about yourselves. Having faith is hard!" No, that's not how he handled it. His answer appears even a bit harsh: "If your faith was even the size of a mustard seed, you could say to this sycamore tree 'be rooted up and planted in the sea,' and it would obey you."

Jesus sharpest rebukes, throughout Scripture, are in response to lack of faith. And his most repeated command in the Gospels is "do not be afraid" which is better translated "stop fearing!"

Why can Jesus be so emphatic about faith and fear? Is it really our fault if we feel shaky inside before the Goliaths in our lives? No, feeling shaky is not our fault. Feelings cannot be commanded. But faith is not a feeling. And the fear that Jesus rebukes is not a feeling. From the biblical accounts of the agony of the Garden, the Lord trembled with fear and dread at the ordeal that was soon to begin. But notice how he responded. He did not flee over the top of the Mount of Olives and disappear in the wilderness of Judea. He stood his ground as darkness approached. I bet Peter felt a few butterflies as he stepped out of the boat to walk on the water. He may have faltered later, but at least, unlike the others, he stepped out of the boat. He refused to be paralyzed by fear.

The Church teaches that faith is one of the theological virtues. And a virtue, says St. Thomas Aquinas, is a habit, a power or capacity that gets stronger when it is exercised and atrophies when it is not. So faith is like a spiritual muscle. We were born with muscles. Some people choose to develop them, and some do not. The way you develop them is to exercise them regularly and to do so against ever increasing resistance. More weight on the bar may mean pain and strain, but it ultimately leads to stronger muscles.

In our new birth from above, through baptism, we are all given the gift of supernatural faith. Some Christians choose to develop this muscle and some do not. You exercise it by making acts of faith both in prayer and in action. Before each Mass, I try to make and act of faith in the Lord's true presence in His people, in his ordained minister, in the Word of God, and most especially in the sacrament of his precious body and blood. When faced with trials, I try to get a hold of my dismay and fear, and make an act of faith in God who has always brought me through troubled waters. When faced with intimidating problems, I try to walk forward despite the feeling that I may not do as well as David did facing his Goliath.

The only way faith grows is to be challenged. So it is OK to pray for an increase of faith. But if you ask for faith, know that this means giving the Lord permission to put more weight on the bar. When he does, you've got to be willing to take a deep breath and lift. For, as St. Paul says, "God did not give us a spirit of timidity, but a spirit of power and love and self-control (2 Tim 1:8)."

Feast of Faith - The Transforming Power of the Eucharist

In this enlightening, four-part adult faith formation series (on 2 CDs), Dr. D'Ambrosio takes you on a journey of discovery, offering profound reflections on the nature of the Holy Eucharist – the "source and summit" of the Catholic faith.

Part One – Sacrifice – discusses how the Mass is a true sacrifice, the "re-presentation" of Jesus' sacrifice on the Cross.

Part Two – Real Presence – The uniqueness of Jesus' presence in the Eucharist is contrasted with the other ways he is present in the world. Our need to be properly prepared to receive Jesus in the Eucharist is discussed in...

Part Three – Preparation – we need to have more faith, more appetite, more repentance, and more forgiveness. Finally...

Part Four – Adoration – offers practical ways we can grow in our devotion to the Holy Eucharist. This is a must-have series for RCIA and Parish Adult Faith Formation.
